

REFERENCES

Collison, Chris; Parcell, Geoff. 2004. Learning to fly: Practical knowledge management from some of the world's leading learning organizations. Capstone, Chichester, GB. 312 p. Web site: <http://www.chriscollison.com/I2f/>

Health Council of Canada. Innovative Practices Evaluation Framework™ IPEF Rating Guide. Retrieved from https://healthcouncilcanada.ca/files/P12-062_IP_Guide_HCC_EN_v3.pdf on April 29, 2019.

King, G., Curran, C.J., & McPherson, A. (2012). A four-part ecological model of community-focused therapeutic recreation and life skills services for children and youth with disabilities. Child: Care, Health & Development, 39 (3), 325-336.

Levesque JF, Harris MF, and Russell G (2013) "Patient-centred access to health care: conceptualizing access at the interface of health systems and populations." International Journal for Equity in Health, 12(1), : 18 (insert pages).

Health Council of Canada, 2007 in Browne, Annette J., Colleen M. Varcoe, Sabrina T. Wong, Victoria L. Smye, Josée Lavoie, Doreen Littlejohn, David Tu et al. (2012) "Closing the health equity gap: evidence-based strategies for primary health care organizations." International Journal for Equity in Health, 11 (1) : 59; Canadian Institute for Health Information, 2008;

Baum, Begin, Houwelling & Taylor, 2009.

Huq JL (2018). Conditioning a professional exchange field for social innovation. Business & Society, pp 1-36.

Mercy Health (2018). How's Your Five? Retrieved from <https://www.mercy.net/practice/mercy-family-center-metairie/hows-your-5/>.

Patton, MQ. (2011). Developmental Evaluation: Applying Complexity Concepts to Enhance Innovation and Use. New York, NY: Guilford Press.